OPENING OF PLAYGROUND

STORES CLOSE LATTER PART OF AFTERNOON.

Large Crowd of Grown-Ups Enjoy Seeing the Children Happy at Play.

Opening Day at the Kurtz Memorial Playground proved to be a delightful affair. The weather that had caused a postponement was all that could be desired and the playground had been put in first class shape for the event. In the evening when the largest crowd was present, 700 to 800 grown-ups were on the grounds and hundreds of children.

The field events began soon after the noon hour with the tennis tournaments and baseball games. Other events followed as quickly as they could be pulled off. In that late afternoon the Printers defeated the Merchants by score of 7 to 1. As six of these runs were made in the first inning, the rest of the game showed very good ball playing. From start to finish the big crowd of children were busy on the slides, see-saws, swings, merry-go-rounds, quoits and all the other healthy, happy recreation plays. The sand boxes were occupied by the little tots. All the children were as happy as could be and all demonstrating to the older folks the benefits and blessings of the playground where the children of the town can have healthful amusement, safe from the dangers of the streets and alleys.

The Citizens' Band in the evening gave a concert, lasting about two hours and this drew the largest crowd of the day. About 9 o'clock the happy event came to an end.

The refreshment stand did a good business. Many children were helping selling buttons and balloons to the people, and large quantities of ice cream, cake, lemonade and other refreshments were disposed of, from which about $50 was realized. The exact sum that will be cleared has not been figured out at the present time, but it is hoped it will be as much as $60.

In the field events Kenneth Rudisill was the winner with ten and one-third points, Charles Miller being second with ten points. Preparedness in Gettysburg College.

The "Harrisburg Star-Independent" had the following editorial in a recent issue on the movement of the authorities and students at Gettysburg College to have military training as part of the college course.

News of the request of students of Gettysburg College for compulsory military training at the school beginning next September is further proof of the hearty approval the young men of the country are giving to plans for a national preparedness. It is encouraging to learn that plans in favor of proper defense of the country are having their effect in the colleges, the places where, it is generally assumed, the thinking young men are to be found. If college men were to neglect their military duty the nation would surely be on its way to misfortune. College men have been hearing both sides of this much-argued question of preparedness. They have been thrashing it out in intercollegiate debates, and in class-room recitations. They have been listening to capable speakers on one side and on the other.

ness and militarism are as much un-American as is the shirking of duty in time of need. The college men are often to be found among the most ardent advocates of peace. Those of them who are desirous of getting military training, however, realize that while force continues to be dominant in the world, each country, their own included, must certainly be prepared to oppose force to force. The fortunate time has not yet come when armed force will no longer be necessary. There are still three duties every American must perform: his poll duty, to elect justice; his jury duty, to administer justice; and his military duty, to protect and defend justice.

It is entirely fitting that the young men of Gettysburg College should petition their college authorities for a course in military training. It was from Gettysburg College many volunteers were drawn during the Civil War period, especially at the time just preceding the Confederate invasion of the North and the battle of Gettysburg. On the battlefield there is now a monument, erected to the memory of the college boys who organized at Gettysburg to aid in defending northern soil. The spirit of patriotism, nourished in the college during the Civil War, surely has not left the place within this intervening time of little more than half a century. That spirit can now manifest itself in no more appropriate and useful way than in voluntary submission, by the students there, to military discipline, that they may always be in readiness in any crisis to aid in the defense of the country.

Aboard for Chautauqua.

There was a meeting of the Chautauqua Committee at the Court House on Monday evening, and from now on it was planned to push the 1916 Chautauqua at Gettysburg to a successful conclusion. The pledges secured at Chautauqua last year were for 600 tickets. Removals and deaths always cause a small loss. The canvassers will go through the town at an early date, collecting for the pledge tickets and seeking to secure additional tickets, so that the Chautauqua can be made to pay for itself and the deficit will not fall on the few, as has been the case every year. It has not only been necessary for a number of citizens to subscribe largely for tickets but at the conclusion there has been a small deficit for the board or guarantors to meet. The Chautauqua as an educational and inspirational force in every community it touches should arrive at a point where it is self-supporting and this town and community appreciating the Chautauqua at its real value could easily make it self-supporting instead of a burden to those who year after year must work hard to get out whole or nearly so.

The Chautauqua brings to this town a class of entertainers and speakers few of us can get away to hear when in the cities. They come with their messages, which are always worth while, in addition to their educational and inspirational value. A Chautauqua is one of the best features of this age to prevent community spirit from getting into and staying in.

The town has been divided into ten districts and the following committee and assistants will do the work of canvassing: M. K. Eckert, J. A. Cox, J. B. Baker, C. S. Reaser, T. J. Winebrenner, J. O. G. Weaver, C. W. Gardner, H. T. Weaver, M. R. Remmel and Martin Winter.

On another page will be found notices with illustrations of some of the attractions for the Gettysburg Chautauqua, July 14 to 20.

Marines Expected in July.

The United States Marine Corps officers are expected to come to Gettysburg about the middle of July for their annual six weeks summer school. They will occupy the college dormitories as usual and the interior work of the Gettysburg Academy is being rushed on the main floor in order to have the dining hall in shape for serving there meals to the Marines instead of in tents as formerly.

He closed by urging the graduates as they got out in the world to always live honorable and Christian lives and to be not afraid of hard work, and to render service to the State and Nation, to the Church and humanity.

Equity Court Hearing.

Judge Sylvester Sadler of Cumberland county specially presided on final hearing. The plaintiff was represented by John Reed Scott, Esq., of this place, and ex-Judge M. Jacobs of Harrisburg, and the defendant by J. Donald Swope, Esq.

As the hearing started it looked as though all the facts would be reheard, the defendant taking the position of withdrawing the admission made before the temporary hearing of having separated himself from his wife without cause. By reason of this position Mrs. Helena Hafer took the witness stand and began the detail of the unhappy marital relations until the defendant told her to leave their home, that he wanted an absolute divorce and would give her ground for same because of cruel treatment. After some of these details had been gone into, all further evidence along this line was stopped by the defendant again making an admission of record that he had separated himself from his wife without good legal cause.

The hearing then took the shape of an investigation into the financial affairs of the defendant for the purpose of informing the court whether the preliminary order of $100 allowance a month was proper or not. The plaintiff had present an expert accountant, J. S. Shumberger of Harrisburg. The defendant was first called to the witness stand as upon cross-examination and was interrogated at length. The array of figures that entered into the evidence had largely to do with the income of the defendant from the Times and News Publishing Company. The answer of the defendant alleged but $444.11 net profit from the company. The item of salary paid the defendant was gone into, also the interest allowed defendant on the money invested in plant, also an item of depreciation charged against the assets of the company, which was admitted to be so much cash to the defendant.

The matter of permanent betterments to plant during the year was gone into, which plaintiff contended could not be charged to the expense account but was earnings applied to betterments instead of to the defendant. The matter of cash withdrawals was gone into and over $1900 admitted. Other sources of income of defendant were gone into, including value of the home property, its rental value and all the proper and legal credits to be allowed the defendant from the gross income, interest on indebtedness. At the conclusion of the defendant's testimony, the expert was not put on the stand, the array of figures it was then alleged would show a net income of over $4000 from the publishing company and with other items running the net income more than $5000.

Martin Winter and Frank Peckman testified as to values of real estate and rental values.

Ross Gilbert of Chambersburg, and Mr. McPherson of Hanover, both newspaper men testified for the defendant on the subject of newspaper accounting and items to be credited, such as depreciation, which while at the time so much cash, was in effect for replacing and not to be charged as income.

Before the conclusion of the hearing, C. S. Duncan, Esq., asked for opportunity to make answer on the part of trust company represented, and leave was given to file an answer within ten days. The hearing was continued until July 7th, at which time it is expected to conclude hearing of all testimony, submit legal points to be passed upon by the court and argue the same.

Unfortunate Accident.

Mrs. J. Rowe Stewart of Germantown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Diehl of this place was unfortunately to be in an auto wreck on Monday evening that resulted in the death of a young man, Harold Milton Sheldon, 20 years old, a bicyclist of Narbeth, a suburb of Philadelphia.

The accident occurred at the corner of Woodbine and Narbeth avenues and, according to witnesses, Sheldon made the turn at high speed. With Mrs. Stewart in the machine were several ladies and the car was moving slowly. Mrs. Stewart tried to change the course of the car in time to avoid the rapidly traveling bicycle rounding the corner. She failed, however, and the youth was caught under the wheels, breaking his neck. It was necessary to jack the car up to remove the body. Sheldon was unconscious and died within three minutes.

After investigation by the coroner and hearing of testimony, Mrs. Stewart was cleared of all blame for the mishap.

Sheldon was ambitious to be a crack bicycle rider. On Memorial Day he took part in a race on the Newark, N. J. Ardmore track. As he came along in the final lap, leading fourteen other racers, he suddenly collapsed and rolled to the bottom of the slanting track. He was picked up in an unconscious condition, but his only serious injuries were several broken bones of the right wrist. It was only the second time Sheldon had been on a bicycle since the Memorial Day accident. Following his release from the Newark Hospital, he laughingly made the boast to his friends that "he'd become a famous bike rider or be killed trying."

School Report of Year.

Miss Helen L. Cope, Supervising Principal of our schools has prepared the following report of attendance in the public schools for the last year with the names of the 106 pupils attending every day. The average per cent. of attendance for all the schools is 94 per cent. a little lower than the previous year and due to the outbreaks of contagious diseases. The Colored School furnished 60 per cent. of the tardiness, and the exceedingly small amount of tardiness in our schools and a high percentage of attendance, only interfered with by outbreaks of diseases expresses volumes for the worth of our schools and the healthy vigorous school sentiment of the town supporting our schools.

The names of the 106 pupils attending every day follow:

Gettysburg College Summer School.

Announcement has been made that a summer school will be conducted during the coming school vacation time on the grounds of Pennsylvania College. Courses will be offered in languages and mathematics, as the equivalents of preparatory and college work in these subjects.

Dr. K. J. Grimm of the faculty of Pennsylvania College, will instruct in Latin, German and French. Professor F. G. Trexell, also of the faculty, will teach mathematics. The work of the school will be concentrated on these subjects. Credit will be given toward the meeting of college entrance requirements, as well as college credit.

Saving the Bottle Fed Baby

The chance of a bottle-fed baby to survive the heated season as against a breast-fed baby is about one in seven according to statistics collected by Commissioner of Health, Samuel G. Dixon. The chance of survival of the bottle-fed baby is directly proportionate to the kind of milk secured at the farm and the care it is given on the way to the consumer and in the hands of the consumer, together with the care given the bottle and the nipple.

The first essential thing is to secure milk from a dairy producing milk under absolutely cleanly conditions, and one that cools milk immediately after milking. Second, this milk should be kept cool until it reaches the consumer and should immediately be placed upon the ice in the consumer's dwelling.

The attending physician should outline for the mother the milk mixture to be given the baby. His directions should be followed implicitly, both as to the proportion of cream, skim milk, water, and sugar of milk and as to the hours of feeding. The milk should be kept upon the ice until the hour of feeding for the baby has arrived. It should then be gently warmed to body heat and served. Never reheat milk for the baby; always throw away what remains in the bottle, and have an entirely fresh supply for each nursing.

Courtesy in Business Pays.

In the American Magazine is a story by Fred C. Kelly to prove that courtesy in business pays. It has to do with George C. Boldt, manager of the Waldorf-Astoria in New York city and former manager of a Philadelphia hotel.

"One night when all the hotels in Philadelphia were crowded and it was almost impossible to obtain a room a man and his wife drove up to Boldt's hotel and asked in a tone of despair if he could not give them a place to sleep.

"Yes," Boldt told them: "you can take my room. That's all I have."

"The next morning the guest told Boldt that a manager with his sense of courtesy would be an assured success in a much larger hotel.

"And," added the guest, "I'm willing to provide you with the hotel."

"Since then that same guest has invested many millions of dollars in hotels under Boldt's direction. The guest was William Waldorf Astor."

Astonishing the Chinese.

"When I was in China," a fireworks man said, "I was astonished to find how little the people knew about pyrotechny beyond their own Chinese crackers. They can make these crackers much more cheaply than they could be produced in America. But of set pieces, rockets and such like, the Chinese know practically nothing, and their attempts to make them are crude in the extreme.

"A Chinese cracker maker living near Hongkong challenged me once to compete with him in a fireworks display, and a friendly mandarin was called in to act as judge. My Chinese opponent set off a lot of gigantic crackers and made a terrifying noise, but the mandarin had been used to that from infancy and wasn't at all impressed. My show, however, astounded him, although it was really a mean exhibit for I wasn't going to waste my best pieces on a private competition. I got the award easily enough.—Washington Star.

French Army Helmets.

There are sixty-four distinct operations necessary in turning out one of the plain steel helmets worn by French soldiers. The first step is stamping out disks from large sheets of steel. A special machine is used for this purpose, exerting a pressure of 150 tons and capable of cutting out 5,000 steel disks a day. Each disk is placed under a shaping machine, which presses the disk into the form of a helmet with a broad rim. Polishing and cutting machines remove all irregularities in the helmet, after which it has holes punched in the crown, some for ventilation purposes, others for fastening on the regimental crest. Each helmet is cleaned and dipped in a special mixture which makes it a dull, inconspicuous bluish-gray. A lining and leather chin straps are then fastened on and the helmet is complete.—Pearson's.

The Wesley Oak.

The Wesley oak, according to the Atlanta (Ga.) Journal, stands on St. Simon's Island, less than a mile from Fort Frederica. It is 200 feet high and its cool shade rests like a benediction over an area of several acres. According to local tradition, this tree marks the exact spot on which the Wesleys preached. Charles Wesley engaged himself to Oglethorpe as private secretary before leaving England. But he afterward took orders and devoted much of his time to preaching near Frederica. From time to time John Wesley came down from Savannah to join him. This famous oak stands at the gateway to the churchyard of Christ church, and several generations sleep within the enclosure that it guards. Mosses hang down from its limbs, and it is solemn and beautiful.

United States.

If you should hear some stranger mention the United States are you positive that you would know what he meant? In the eastern part of South America the term "United States" is regarded as an unqualified designation of the republic of Brazil, while a little way to the north the term is taken to refer to Venezuela. In almost all parts of the southern continent the mention of a country in the northern hemisphere called "United States" is likely to suggest Mexico, whose official title is Estados Unidos Mexicanos. There are still those who speak of the republic of Colombia as "the United States," because during the period when its federal constitution was in force, from 1861 to 1886, it was called Estados Unidos de Colombia.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Self Reliance.

The spirit of self help is the root of all genuine growth in the individual, and, exhibited in the lives of many, it constitutes the true source of national vigor and strength. Help from without is often enfeebling in its effects, but help from within invariably invigorates. Whatever is done for men or classes to a certain extent takes away the stimulus and necessity of doing for themselves, and where men are subjected to overdependence and overgovernment the inevitable tendency is to render them comparatively helpless.—Samuel Smiles.

A Close Connection.

"I'm tryin' to get some information about a friend of mine named Fox, who came out here," said the stranger from the east. "They tell me he died of some throat trouble."

"I guess that's about right," said the cowboy.

"What was it? Bronchitis?"

"Bronchitis? That's a new one on me, but I reckon I see the connection. He stole a broncho."—Philadelphia Press.

Antiquity of the Ballet.

Strictly defined, the ballet is properly a theatrical exhibition of the art of dancing in its highest perfection, complying generally with the rules of the drama as to its composition and form. It was in existence in Italy as far back as A. D. 1500, the court of Turin in that day making especial use of it and the royal family and nobles taking part in it. The ballet was first introduced in France in the reign of Louis XIII, and both that monarch and Louis XIV. occasionally took part in its dances. About the year 1700 women made their first appearance in the ballet, which up to that time had been performed exclusively by men, as was the case also with plays and operas, but no woman ballet dancer of any note appeared until 1720.

Leggings of the Marines.

The stout leggings worn by members of the United States marine corps are not a purely decorative adjunct to their very natty uniforms, as popularly supposed by civilians, but are a protection for the men against tropical diseases while in foreign service, naval surgeons say. Many of the most dangerous tropical diseases are transmitted by the bites of insects. Among these are malaria, yellow fever, bubonic plague, hookworm, elephantiasis and tropical ulcer. Fleas and mosquitos are the prime carriers, and they make their first attack upon the ankles, thence working their way over the whole body. The leggings worn by the United States marines afford splendid protection to the ankles against fleas, mosquitos and infected dirt.

His Backbone is a Spring.

The snapping bug has a spring to his back, like a knife. When not in use as a spring it serves him as a backbone, so you see he is a believer in scientific efficiency and makes one part of his machinery do the work of two. His spring backbone, or backbone spring if you prefer, gives him power to jump, which in turn gives him his name. Nature probably gave him the spring to help him get on his feet when he's on his back. You've noticed how helpless some insects are when you lay them on their backs. Not this one, however. He slips his backbones out of its groove and then slips it back again suddenly. The spring pops him up in the air, he turns a somersault and drops right side up. Spring back bones are common in several other beetles. The beetle of the postoffice wire worm, which destroys the farmer's crops, has a spring in his back. Other members of the family make their homes in trees or decayed wood.—Philadelphia North American.

Resourceful Burglar.

A constable going the rounds of his beat in London a few nights ago noticed a light in a house from which the family and servants had gone out of town. After the officer had pulled the bell several times a man put his head out of the bedroom window to say that he would be down in a few minutes. He came down in a dressing gown and carrying a candle in his hand.

The constable explained his suspicion, whereupon the man stated that he had just run up to town to see that all was right. After chatting for a little he invited the constable to have a glass of wine. He lit the dining room gas and produced a bottle of port. After they had drunk each other's health he let the constable out and bolted the door after him.

The man lost no time in getting the "swag" together and left the house in another exit.

Giving a Horse Its Name.

The shire horse owes its name to Arthur Young's remarks, in the description of his agricultural tours during the closing years of the eighteenth century, concerning the large old English black horse, "the produce principally of the shire counties in the heart of England." But long previous to this the word "shire" in connection with horses was used in statutes of Henry VIII. Under the various names of the war horse, the great horse, the old English black horse and the shire horse the breed has for centuries been cultivated in the rich fen lands of Lincolnshire and Cambridgehire and in many counties of the west. Curiously enough, the Shire Horse society, which has done so much to promote the breed, was known for the first six years of its existence, which began in 1878, as the English Cart Horse society.—London Chronicle.

Guest of Honor.

Dr. John B. McAllister, formerly of Gettysburg and now of Harrisburg, was the guest of honor at a reception tendered him by the Philadelphia Medical Club at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, Friday night, June 9th. Previous to the reception attended by over a thousand members of the club, Dr. McAllister was the guest of Dr. Judson De Land, president of the club, at dinner at the Union League.

The receptions by the Philadelphia Medical Club to noted citizens are regarded as the most important functions of the city, many distinguished men being honored.

New England on Lincoln Highway.

The Lincoln Highway—in which New England is not deeply or immediately interested, since this memorial road is designed to run merely from Jersey City to the Pacific coast, ignoring New England—is to be marked, only in a preliminary manner, in the interest of publicity, with red, white, and blue band painted upon every sixth telephone pole on the route. Let us rejoice that this emblazonment is merely preliminary, and trust that the memorial highway itself, if it ever is achieved, will not be decorated in so flamboyant a manner. The idea of a memorial highway "entirely across the country" is an excellent one, but the only suitable place at which to begin such a road, if it were really to be national and memorial, would be Hingham, Mass., which was the cradle of Lincoln's family. And the road, when completed, should branch from Oakland, Cal., northward to Blaine, Wash., and southward to Tia Juana, Cal., while a branch from the point of its crossing the Delaware River should strike southeastward as far as St. Augustine, Fla., traversing the Shenandoah Valley and Rockingham County, Va., where Lincoln's father was born.

Abraham Lincoln was distinctly of New England ancestry, for the Lincolns of Hingham, from whom he was directly descended, were as typical of their environment as any men could be. In saltiness and pith of speech, in clearness and independence and shrewdness of thought, in sturdiness of character, he "took after" the Hingham Lincolns. George Washington's characterization of General Benjamin Lincoln, the kinsman of Abraham's Hingham progenitor, Mordecai quite fits Abraham himself: "He proved himself on all occasions, an active, spirited, sensible man." An almost unique combination of adjectives; for though activity is often joined with spirit, the qualities appear to be at war with solid sense. There were also the Levi Lincolns, father and son, both governors of Massachusetts, and Enoch, governor of Maine—all Hingham Lincolns, and men of quality and originality. The debt of President Abraham Lincoln to the potency of this Hingham blood is absolute warrant for the commencement of the Lincoln Memorial Highway within the limits of the ancient town and by the shores of Boston Bay.

There has been in this country a great deal of what may be called premature memorial building. A memorial is authorized by congress, a state legislature, or a municipal government, and money is assigned, and straightaway, quite at half cock, an entirely inappropriate monument is erected. We see the effect of this tendency in the awful Statuary Hall in the Capitol at Washington. Each state has been asked to contribute to this Valhalla two statues—only two—of deceased citizens whom it deems most worthy of such honor. The states responded as at the drop of the handkerchief: we look for the American demigods; and behold the result. By the side of Virginia's Washington and Lee we have, not Massachusetts' Emerson and Wendell Phillips, but Massachusetts' Samuel Adams and John Winthrop; we have Ohio's James A. Garfield and William Allen; Pennsylvania sends us J. P. G. Muhlenberg instead of Benjamin Franklin; we have Illinois' James Shields and Frances E. Willard; while Florida sends an effigy of the immortal John W. Gorrie, and Idaho one of George L. Shoup of imperishable memory; and Kansas, for all time, is to be represented by Geo. W. Glack. Neither Kentucky nor Illinois has sent the statue of Lincoln, nor any state that of Grant. Thus do we make mockery, in this land, of the memorial opportunity which our boundless wealth affords. Better to wait than to err so signally as we have done up to this date. Lincoln's memory is to be honored otherwise by congress than with a memorial highway, and of this we should be glad. His name is deserving of the most glorious monument that America can rear.—From the Boston Transcript.

Buy Pennsylvania Farm Products.

In a movement to create a greater demand for Pennsylvania farm products and fruits, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is calling upon commission men, grocers, housewives and all consumers to enlist in an effort to bring about recognition for the State's unsurpassed cereals, grains, fruits, and other farm and garden crops.

At the same time the Department of Agriculture is urging the farmers of the State to establish distinctive labels or trade-marks on all carriers and containers of farm produce and fruits, so that their goods may be known on the wholesale and retail markets and to the consumers.

Pennsylvania ranks high in agriculture and it is a well established fact that apples and peaches, grown in abundance in this State, cannot be excelled for quality and flavor. The general garden and farm crops also rank high and there is no reason why any true Pennsylvanian should not be willing to demand the produce raised by its own citizens, if its standard is good and its source is known by label or trade mark.

Farmers can secure at small cost distinctive labels or trade-marks to place upon containers and all should bear some such wording as "Pennsylvania Apples, from the John Smith Farm, Harrisburg, Pa." This system of labelling can be adopted to all manner of farm produce carriers, even in large lots or by the dozen to large and small consumers.

When a trade-marked package reaches a consumer and the fruit or produce is found to be well packed, fresh, attractive and above all good in quality, there is hardly any doubt but that the same consumer will go back to the merchant for another package from that same farm. In this way the farmer, at very little cost, advertises his products and creates a market that will grow rapidly. By carefully marketing his goods under a trade-mark the farmer will establish a good will that will be an asset of probably greater value than his farm equipment.

An interesting story is told by a prominent produce man about a method he used to make a market for high class apples. He talked of a certain brand of Pennsylvania apples to a prominent banker, and sent him a box of carefully packed and beautiful specimens as a gift. The banker kept the apples in his office and treated his friends. The friends inquired where the apples were grown and where they could be purchased, with the result that many orders came from the first box which was sent complimentary.

In some sections the farmers by co-operative associations have a special trade-mark on their baskets, such as a star or colored band, with the name of the association and the location always prominent. The products are kept to a certain standard, carefully packed and the satisfied customers are constantly advertising that brand with the result that a larger market is always being created.

If Pennsylvania commission men and the consumers know that the consumers know that the produce they are purchasing, selling and eating comes from the farms of this State and that it is better than that being shipped in from other States, the demand for home products will serve to solve, in a great measure, the marketing problems of the farmers. All Pennsylvanians are urged to advertise their goods by use of the label or trade-mark on containers.

Mack on Elmer Myers.

Connie Mack recently expressed himself upon the new Adams county wonder in baseball, Elmer Myers of York Springs.

"As great or greater than Bender, Plank or Combs in their prime," that is the way Mack sizes up Myers.

"I'll send Myers to the mound, and I wish every fan who can spare the time would come out and watch him work," said the leader of the Quaker American League outfit.

"I consider this young player one of the greatest pitchers developed in many years, and he's going to make history—mark my word."

"Myers has everything that a pitcher should possess. He has height and the right weight. He tips the scales at 180 and is 6 feet 2 inches in height. He has a fast ball and curves that are puzzling. He is cool under fire and possesses natural ability to play the game at all times."

"Myers has worked against some of the greatest pitchers and has defeated most of the veterans he has met. He won three games in a week, and one of his greatest exhibitions of pitching came in the contest with the White Sox in Philadelphia. Faber is a great pitcher, but Myers defeated him that day. Only one earned run was made off Myers, and that resulted from passes in the first inning. Myers settled and didn't issue a base on balls after that inning. The Sox made only a few scattered hits off him after that."

It is seldom that Mack palavers over a rookie the way he does over Myers. When he boosts a young player this way one can put it down that the rookie is going to make good. Mack is considered the best judge of a player in the big leagues. That is his long suit.

UNSHAKEN TESTIMONY.

Time is the test of truth. And Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test in Gettysburg. No Gettysburg resident who suffers backache, or annoying urinary ills can remain unconvinced by this twice-told testimony.

Mrs. Mary E. Ohler, 147 Hanover St., Gettysburg, says: "I had been troubled by weak kidneys for a long time. My back ached constantly and pains shot up to my head. I had frequent chills and often got very dizzy. The kidney action was irregular and the secretions contained sediment. Rheumatic pains bothered me greatly. This went on until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from the Peoples Drug Store. I could notice the difference almost as soon as I started to take them. My kidneys acted properly, the dizzy spells left, my back got better and finally, the rheumatic pains entirely disappeared."

(Statement given January 3, 1910). On February 12, 1916, Mrs. Ohler said: "It hasn't been necessary for me to use Doan's Kidney Pills in quite a long time, so I feel the benefit they gave me has been permanent."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Ohler has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Paradoxical Laws.

It is not commonly known to the public that Pennsylvania Drug Laws are paradoxical, compelling druggists with a fixed place of business and great financial responsibility to be graduates of pharmacy and to have had four years of training before they are eligible to legally conduct a drug business, while any person, even one mentally deficient, or moral pervert can compound patent medicines, containing arsenic, strychnine, corrosive sublimate, or other dangerous drugs, and offer the poisonous mixture for sale and the only redress the public would have would be a civil suit for damages after taking.

Paul L. Brandt, a member of the graduating class of Shippensburg Normal School, has been elected principal of the York Springs public schools at a salary of $60 a month.

HUGHES AND FAIRBANKS

HOW THEIR NOMINATIONS ARE JUDGED BY AN INDEPENDENT.

The "New York Times" Says Nominations Have Likenesses to an Endorsement of Wilson.

The "New York Times," the leading journal of that city, independent in politics, had the following as its leading editorial the day following the nomination of Hughes and Fairbanks by the Republican National Convention:

The nomination of Theodore Roosevelt by the Republicans would have had a meaning clear to every American mind. That candidacy would have raised high and made visible the issue of opposition to Woodrow Wilson on the only grounds that make it capable of statement. It would have meant that in the judgment of the Republican party the United States ought now to be engaged in the European war, that it ought to be at war with Mexico, or as a conqueror actually in possession of that country. The nomination of Mr. Hughes must bear to foreign observers a bewildering likeness to an express endorsement of the Administration of Woodrow Wilson. He is a man of the same type, conservative, deliberate, accustomed to consider carefully the consequences of his acts, never rash, never yielding to hasty impulse or swayed by the heat of passion, yet withal inferior in capacity and experience. It is impossible to imagine Mr. Hughes as President writing a message to Congress demanding a great war credit and instant naval and military preparation for a war with Germany because of the destruction of Belgium or the destruction of the Lusitania. The utmost stretch of fancy does not enable us to see him asking Congress to declare war on Mexico. The picture would be wholly imaginary, false to the man and the occasion.

Yet the Republicans have absolutely no other issue upon which with any degree of force and consistency they can demand of the people with drawal of their confidence in President Wilson. That issue they dare not raise. They condemn, they denounce, they use freely the adjectives of the language, but their nouns and verbs have no specific meaning. If Mr. Roosevelt's denunciations of the Administration mean anything at all, they mean that he would have gone to war with Germany, that he would have gone to war with Mexico. That is the popular understanding of what he is driving at. He was the indicated and logical candidate, the only candidate by whose nomination the Republicans would have clearly manifested their aversion to Mr. Wilson's policy of peace, their preference for a policy of war. Even Mr. Roosevelt's words, while they fill the air with the din of many explosions, leave no distinct impress upon the mind. President Wilson, he says, "has rendered to this people the most evil service that can be rendered to a great democracy by its chosen leader." By not going to war with four monarchies and one republic? His words raise no other issue against Mr. Wilson than the mind of the people could grasp. To have put him before them as a candidate, with loud outcries for war upon his lips and a platform denouncing the Administration for not plunging the country into war, would have put the Republicans into the campaign with a definable issue.

The candidate they have chosen has of necessity been speechless. He now says: "I stand for the firm and unflinching maintenance of all the rights of American citizens on land and sea." Would Mr. Hughes have gone to war about the Lusitania, or would he have maintained unflinchingly the rights of American citizens on land and sea, as Mr. Wilson has maintained them, by the peaceful methods of diplomacy? The President has forced Germany to acknowledge the right of our citizens to travel upon the seas in safety and without molestation. In Heaven's name, what more could Mr. Hughes have done? Had we gone to war, Germany would now be destroying every enemy passenger ship upon all waters where her submarines could hold their way, and we could ask no redress. "In our foreign relations," he says, "we have suffered from the weak and vacillating course which has been taken with regard to Mexico." Weakness and vacillation would never have wrung from Germany her consent to abandon methods of warfare which her Government and a great part of her people believe to be well justified and essential to the success of her arms. Mr. Hughes' statement is preposterous, his criticism flat and feeble. As his part in an agreement with Oyster Bay it can be understood, but inevitably he lays himself open to the inevitable question: "Pray, what would you have done?" And that question he will never answer.

Not less pointless are the candidate's observations on Mr. Wilson's course with Mexico. It was "lamentably wrong," says Mr. Hughes. He must tell the country what course would have been right, and then prove that it would have been more successful than Mr. Wilson's course. Apparently, he would have recognized Huerta. We sought to dictate, he says, when we were not concerned. How would it have helped matters to set up the pretense of friendly relations with that old devotee of brandy and usurpation? Responsibility for our relations with Mexico would have made Mr. Hughes more cautious about his language. Minor troubles there were inevitable. The major trouble of war with Mexico was the only sure way to end them. Mr. Wilson has avoided war. Mr. Hughes also would have avoided it.

The Republicans want to get the Democrats out in order that they may get in—that is the only issue upon which they can speak boldly. They have no other. They select their candidates from a historical period long past. Mr. Hughes means nothing to the country save what would have been meant by any other chosen among forty silent men. The candidacy of Mr. Fairbanks means nothing more than the hope of winning the electoral votes of Indiana and a few other States where he is held in esteem by men who are unaware that anything has happened since 1909. Platform and candidates are a confession that the Republican party, striving to heal its hurts and strike a successful bargain for the return to its household of those who sought to destroy it, has no new or vital message to deliver to the American people.

Praise without reservation or qualification is due to Mr. Hughes for his clear, sound, and admirable words. "I stand for Americanism that knows no ulterior purpose," he says, for a patriotism that is single and complete. Whether native or naturalized, of whatever race or creed, we have but one country, and we do not for an instant tolerate any division of allegiance. There is no ambiguity about that declaration, no room is left for doubt. Mr. Hughes has done his part to take the hyphen out of American politics. The Democrats cannot do less, they will make overtures for the support of voters with a divided allegiance only at their peril. Fortunately, Mr. Wilson has spoken with no less directness and sterner emphasis in taking the same position. Mr. Hughes declares his belief in preparedness "entirely adequate for our defense with respect to numbers and equipment in both army and navy," and that is Mr. Wilson's position. For the advocates of national defenselessness upon the one hand, and for those who are in sympathy with the purposes of German militarism upon the other, there will be no place in this campaign unless they put forward a candidate of their own.

Mr. Hughes will not be elected. His defeat is to be desired, among many other reasons, for this good and sufficient reason that the invasion of the Supreme Court's chamber by needy politicians in search of a leader, now for the first time in American history successfully accomplished, may be rebuked and made a precedent too dangerous for following. The ermine that we have been taught to believe should touch nothing less spotless than itself must not be donned for a few seasons' wear to be stripped off by a reckless party convention forcing its wearer into the dust and turmoil of the political arena. The Republicans have assailed the purity of that great bench. They have put the Justices who sit there under the almost irresistible temptation to turn their minds aside from the questions that alone concern them, to let their thoughts wander to fields of contention where they should have no part. It is disturbing and a menace to that judicial calm and impartiality which should prevail in that chamber which to which by the acceptance of appointment Justices of the Supreme Court should devote their minds and their lives.

Can Widower Take Widow's Benefits

Equity proceedings to recover from the Cigarmakers' International Union of America and the local Union, No. 316, McSherrystown, the sum of $550, death benefits for the demise of his wife, have been instituted by F. X. Little, McSherrystown, through his attorneys Swope & Swope. The case is an unusual one and is of considerable interest to cigarmakers' unions throughout this section of the State.

The claim of the plaintiff is for a death benefit under a provision of the constitution of the union which says, "If the decedent shall have been a member continuously for fifteen years or longer period next preceding his death, the sum of five hundred and fifty dollars shall be paid." The constitution also decrees that if a member has not designated by will to whom the money shall be paid, such benefits shall be paid the widow.

The union contends that the member in this case being a woman, the widow is not entitled to the benefit, under the constitution, as the case is not covered explicitly in the code. The widow being entitled to the benefit in case of a husband's death, the rule is applicable, when the surviving beneficiary is a widow, claims the plaintiff.

It is said the local union desires to pay the claim, but that the national organization refuses to sanction such action and the equity proceedings have been instituted.

In the paper book of the defendant it is set forth that F. X. Little, is the widower of Emma J. Little, who at the time of her decease, to wit, the 12th day of May, 1915, was the lawful wife of F. X. Little, and a member in good standing of aforesaid Cigarmakers' International Union of America, and Cigar Makers' Local Union No. 316, McSherrystown, under the name of Mrs. Emma J. Little, and that F. X. Little was the only relative dependent for support in whole or in part upon the said Emma J. Little, at the date of her death.

The decedent's beneficiary would therefore be entitled to the death benefit under the constitution, but the beneficiary being a widow, and the case, not being specifically mentioned in the constitution, the national order has refused to allow the payment despite the attitude of the local union, it is said. The officers of the National Union are, G. W. Perkins, Samuel Gompers, Thomas F. Tracy, A. Gariety, L. P. Hoffman, John Raichert, E. G. Hall, William Strauss and Gibson Weber, while the officers of the McSherrystown Union are C. L. Lawrence, J. I. Lawrence, F. X. Colgan and Sebastian Weaver.

The bill of complaint asks for the payment of the $550 with interest from the date of Mrs. Little's death and costs of suit, and "such other relief as in the premises may be necessary or to your Honors seem meet and just."

New Parcel Post Container.

An invention said to mean millions to farmers, postmasters and others has just been approved by the post-office authorities. It is a container for parcel post shipments specially adapted to the shipment of eggs and is said to supply the missing link in the "farm to table service," originally contemplated in the inauguration of the parcel post system.

The new container is made of the same fiber as used in the manufacture of car wheels, is very light, and yet strong enough to bear the weight of a man. At the same time, it is said to be a non-conductor of heat or cold, so that cold articles remain cold and hot articles remain hot when shipped in this container. A peculiar inner arrangement of thin fiber partitions absorbs all shocks.

Post office department experts after making a test of the container, reported on it very favorably, adding "In our opinion it is superior in every way to any containers for this purpose that have been submitted to this committee for examination." The container when filled with eggs is said to have been dropped a distance of three feet to a marble floor without breaking an egg.

Back Yards and Character.

Bret Hart once wrote a story in which he pointed out that for an insight into the occupant's true character one must look at the back and not at the front of a man's house. Here was knowledge of human nature. If we want to estimate character accurately we must have an all around view and not accept face values.

This brings us again to the question of back yards. Is your's as clean and well kept as you can make it or is it littered with trash, cans, kindling and other rubbish? Is the garbage and waste properly covered and free from flies? Is the stable and out-house a fly breeding center for the neighborhood? You have work ahead of you for your health's sake and for the sake of decency if any of these conditions exist.

It is a privilege to have a back yard even a small one. There are thousands of dwellers in cities where land is sold by the square foot, who yearn for a little space to call their own. Those who are so fortunate as to have back yards should care for them and make use of them.

If there are children in the family the back yard should be their playground. A doll house, turning pole, a swing or a tent will provide almost unlimited entertainment and help to keep children off the streets.

If there are no children in the family, a shovel, a rake, a hoe and a moderate sized back yard garden should afford a reasonable amount of healthful exercise combined with pleasure and profit.—Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M.D., LL.D., Commissioner of Health.

Inhaling the fumes from a phosphorus poison which they were preparing for rats, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Sanders, living about 1 1/2 miles from Fairfield, were made seriously ill. They got some of the poison on their hands and in a short time began to feel a burning sensation in their mouths and afterward this same sensation in their stomachs caused severe suffering. The quick work of two physicians prevented probably fatal results.

Joseph Holtz of New Oxford while assisting at unloading a mowing machine was thrown from the wagon and was painfully injured on his right side and back. Only a short time ago Mr. Holtz, who is 78 years of age, had several ribs broken by a fall in the stable at his farm.

CHAUTAUQUA ATTRACTIONS

Gettysburg Pa., July 14--20.

THE STROLLERS QUARTET

Chautauqua audiences are the most appreciative in the world. They know a good thing when they see it. The Original Strollers Quartet has a third season's engagement with the Chautauqua Association of Swarthmore and will be on our program this year solely because the Chautauquas demand them.

They present a program of wonderful variety—quartets, duets, solos, both vocal and instrumental; songs, both serious and comic; interlocutor work; high grade recitals, both tear fetching and laughter compelling, with many etoeteras. With it all, they are the best Swiss Bell Ringers on the road. They never fail to capture the crowd.

The Conquest of the Arctic

DR. WIRT.

Covering three years of life, adventure and exploration in the lands bordering the Circum-Polar sea, with Eskimos for companions and dogs for heroes, Dr. Wirt's discoveries and explorations parallel in many respects those of other arctic travelers, but his interpretation of Eskimo life and the story of his dogs are absolutely unique.

His flight during the long night of an arctic winter in quest of relief for his sick, ice imprisoned companions; the almost human intelligence of his dogs; the Igloo village never before visited by white man; the strange customs, fetich dances and heathenish orgies of the Eskimo; the treachery of false guides; the awful silence and loneliness; the auroral splendors; his study of arctic bird and animal life; the escape from wolves; the attack of a whale while at sea in an open kayak and the final escape—all this and much more combine to make an unusually fascinating lecture.

Holy Lands of All Religions.

Christians call Palestine the Holy Land because it was the birthplace of the Christian religion on earth as well as that of the Saviour, whose birth, ministry and death are inseparably associated with the history of Jerusalem and vicinity. To the Mohammedans Mecca, in Arabia, is the holy land, the birthplace of Mohammed, the saviour of the followers of that faith.

India is the holy land of the Chinese and other oriental Buddhists, it being the native land of Sakya Muni, the supreme Buddha. Ellis, one of the several divisions of the ancient Peloponnesus, was the Mecca and the Jerusalem of the ancient Greeks. The temple of Olympus Zeus was situated at Elis, and the sacred festivals were held there each year. The believers in the Shinto religion make annual pilgrimages to Sitsa Kara, the immense stone pillar where their supreme ruler last stood while talking to men.

Pigeons in Constantinople.

In no big city in the world are there so many tame pigeons as in Constantinople. In many squares in London there are small flocks of pigeons, but in the Turkish capital they are to be seen by the thousand. These pigeons are sacred, and indeed, many a wealthy Turk leaves money to be devoted to buying food for them. The story of why they are sacred is rather interesting. When Mohammed, the Turkish prophet, was flying from his enemies he hid in a cavern. At the mouth of the cavern two pigeons built their nest, so tradition runs, while across the entrance a spider spun its web. The saviors who came along some days later felt certain that no one had entered the cave, seeing the birds feeding and the spider's web, and so they went in and entered it and saved the prophet.

Australia's Stony Desert.

The great stony desert of north Australia was discovered by Captain Stuart, an Australian explorer, in 1845-6. It is north of the river Darling and is about 340 miles long and 100 broad, consisting of sandy dunes or ridges, its want of trees, except along the creeks, gives the country a sterile appearance. These ridges were probably formed by the joint effect of winds and a gradually retreating sea. According to Captain Stuart, these waters were gradually lost by evaporation or carried to some undiscovered sea. The only vegetation, growing scantily, is prickly acacias in full bloom, all of stunted growth. Water is scarce except in the creeks which are sheltered, and this is generally brackish. Few travelers care to traverse this inhospitable desert.

Queer Tail of a Bird.

Signal officer of the birds' army corps is the racket tailed humming bird. For his duties nature has equipped him with a pair of purple flags fashioned out of two long and peculiar tail feathers. He wiggles his signals from one tree to another, issues his challenges to battle and courts his mate. When he's not signaling he's sipping honey from the flowers and trying to keep his tail from entangling itself in the briars.

He's a midget of the South American mountains. He has short wings, which he operates at lightning speed. His tail is a combination of two wirelike handles, with a purple tuft of feathers at the end of each. He crosses them near the middle, and sometimes he brings the pair of "rackets" at the ends to his head, as though trying to fan himself.

The male birds have a sort of love dance which they engage in during the mating season. Then they play all sorts of tricks with the rackets.—Philadelphia North American.

Holly Springs where he had been living for the past two years on last Saturday. His age was 80 years, 11 months and 24 days. In his early life he was a shoemaker by trade. He was born in York county and spent some years there, later coming to Gettysburg. For some time he had been living retired. He was a veteran of the Civil War, a member of Co. Not wanting to make the drive from New Chester to New Oxford Saturday, he went to the latter place Friday evening to remain at the hotel over the night. He had put his horse away and entered the lobby of the hotel when persons nearby noticed him stagger and then fall to the floor. The physician arriving in a short time, made an examination and pronounced his condition critical. He died in a few minutes. Mr. Arthur had been a sufferer from cancer for a number of years, having undergone an operation about two years ago. He was a native of York county, having moved to a farm near New Chester about twelve years ago. Prior to going there he resided in Midway and was engaged as a cigar-maker. ENJOY your MEALS

Can't, if you're too done up to eat. And you're bound to tire, after a morning in the kitchen, over a coal range. For it's wearing, beyond a woman's strength, to carry wood and haul coal from bin to kitchen.

And you can't control the heat of a coal range. Most times you've far more heat than you need—a waste of fuel—that turns the kitchen into a nerve-racking furnace.

A New Perfection Oil Cook Stove offers you a way to end kitchen drudgery and at the same time to economize, for the Perfection burns kerosene, the cheapest fuel. Think—no coal, no wood, no shaking, no ashes, no fear of the fire going cold. Instead, heat when you want it and exactly as much as you want.

A New Perfection is inexpensive. Ask your dealer to show you its fireless cooker, its separate oven, its combustion chimney, its long-lasting wick.

Be sure, though, you use Atlantic Rayolight Oil in your Perfection. That's essential. For it is just as necessary to discriminate in buying kerosene as it is in selecting flour. It takes use to prove either. You don't have to buy a flour on trust; neither need you take a chance on kerosene.

For you can ask for Rayolight with the positive assurance that every gallon will be like every other gallon. A kerosene that will burn without smoke or smell, but that will yield a great and a cheap heat.

With all its advantages Rayolight costs no more than ordinary, unreliable kerosene. Buy it by name, where you see this sign:

THE ATLANTIC REFINING CO.

Our advertising features generally the lines of goods pertaining to Wearing Apparel or Household Furnishings of which we carry, as you know, a very large stock both in yard goods and made up ready for use.

In this connection we wish to call attention to the opportunities we have--at this season of the year particularly--of getting "closing out lots" in various lines much under regular prices--even in this day of continued higher prices--and this opportunity we pass over to our customers on the same basis of lower cost to them.

We want this Ad to especially call attention to our unusual stock of Domestic Dry Goods and House and Bed Linens, Counterpanes, etc.--of which we carry immense lines all during the year.

Our buying prestige permits us to often give much lower prices and better values than can be obtained elsewhere. We ask you to use this great store for any line of goods you may need--with the utmost confidence that both the goods and the prices are absolutely right.

DEMOCRACY'S KEYNOTE.

Former Governor Martin Glynn of New York, was temporary chairman of the Democratic National Convention held this week in St. Louis. He made a brilliant address in his keynote speech of the occasion. He concluded his masterful oration in the following tribute to President Woodrow Wilson.

Americanism and peace, preparedness and prosperity, these are the issues upon which the Democratic party stands, and the heart of Democracy swells with pride that is more than a pride of party, as it hails the man, who has asserted this Americanism, assured this peace, advocated this preparedness and produced this prosperity.

The man who is President of the United States today has measured up to the best traditions of a great office.

He has been wise with a wisdom that is steeped in the traditions of his country, with a wisdom that has been disciplined by training and broadened by instruction.

He has been prudent with the prudence of one who has within his hands the destiny of a hundred million people.

He has been firm with the firmness that proceeds from deep conviction, with the firmness that is grounded in a duty well defined.

He has been courageous with the courage that places country above self, with the courage that follows duty wherever it may lead.

He has been dignified with the dignity that is self-forgetting and self-respecting, with the dignity that conserves the majesty of the greatest office in the world.

He has been patient with the patience which believes and trusts that truth crushed to earth will rise again, with the patience that can endure and wait, watch and pray, for the certain vindication of justice, and right.

He has been patriotic with a patriotism that has never wavered, a patriotism that is as pure and strong as the faith that moved the fathers when they made our country free.

No president since the civil war has had as crucial problems to solve; and no President has displayed a grasp more sure, a statesmanship more profound.

Assailed by the wolves of privilege he has pulled their claws and drawn their teeth.

Assaulted by partisan envy, he has shamed his traducers into silence and made friend and foe go forward together in the paths of national progress.

He has fired our patriotism with a new ardor; he has breathed into our ancient traditions a new vigor and a new life.

He has added strength to America's courage and mingled mercy with America's strength.

He has fastened the brakes of justice upon the wheels of power; he has lifted the mists from the temple where our liberties are enshrined.

And when the history of these days comes to be written and the children of tomorrow read their nation's story, when time shall have dispelled all misconception, and the years shall have rendered their impartial verdict, we name with pride the name of the man who has shined in golden splendor upon the page that is blackened with the tale of Europe's war, one name will represent the triumph of American principles over the hosts of darkness and of death.

That name will be the name of the great President who has made Democracy proud that it is a Democracy, and made Americans proud that they are Americans.

It will be the name of the student and the scholar who has kept this country true to its faith in a time that tried men's souls; the name of the man who has championed the cause of Americanism, of men wherever they are, and of the name of the man who has represented his country's flag on the highest peak to which human eyes have ever soared; the name that carries with it a path of progress to victory and peace.

It will carry the name of the man who has carried the name of Democracy, of the President and the student to be.

Mr. and Mrs. Leese left on a wedding trip. They will reside at Orona where the groom is engaged in tinning business. The bride is a graduate of the Millersville State Normal School.

Grau — Sanders. — A quiet but very pretty wedding took place Tuesday morning in St. Aloysius Church, Littlestown, when Miss Elizabeth Sanders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sanders of near Taneytown, and J. Edward Grau, son of Mrs. Anna Grau, of Littlestown, were married, Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan performing the ceremony. The attendants were Zacharias Sanders and Miss Genevieve Sanders, brother and sister of the bride. The bride wore a gown of crepe de chine, with a tulle veil and wreath. The bridesmaid wore a pretty gown of pale blue silk, with hat to match. After a reception and dinner at the home of the bride, they left for a short trip to Baltimore and other points. Upon their return they will reside at the home of the bridegroom, in Littlestown.

Immell — Roth. — Miss Helen Roth, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. O. C. Roth, of Chambersburg, and George W. Immell, Jr., also of Chambersburg, were married Thursday morning by Dr. Luther Kuhlman at his home on Seminary Ridge. Dr. J. A. Singmaster assisted in the ceremony. More New York Memorials.

The New York Monuments Commission visited Gettysburg the end of last week and were here for several days. In the party were Col. Lewis Stegman, chairman of the Commission, General Horatio P. King, Col. H. C. Beckwith and Col. Curry. They were registered at the Eagle Hotel during their stay. They were here to locate sites for memorials to Major-General Abner Doubleday, temporary commander of the First Corps after the death of General Reynolds and Brigadier-General John C. Robinson, commander of the Second Division of the First Corps. Both memorials have been authorized by the Legislature of New York. It is expected they will cost from $9,000 to $10,000 for each, and will be similar to that of Major-General Webb, granite pedestals being surmounted by heroic bronze figures of the commanders. It was decided to place the memorial to General Doubleday and Robinson on the First Day's Field at points on avenues bearing their names. The New York Commission has been doing the most thorough work in marking this field with memorials to her sons who participated in the battle and its memorials are among the best artistic productions on the field.

Shippensburg Commencement.

The Cumberland Valley State Normal School will hold their annual commencement during the last week of June. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached on Sunday, June 25. The address to the graduating class will be Monday morning. Tuesday will be given over to the alumni and reunions and Wednesday, June 28, the commencement exercises will take place. Adams county provides three members of the senior class, Nellie Rice of Biglerville, Elmer N. Greer of East Berlin, and J. F. Slaybargh of Arendtsville.

The alumni reunion to be held at the Shippensburg Normal School on Tuesday afternoon, June 27, will be very largely attended. There will be a procession of the classes, beginning with the class of '74 and concluding with all classes past and prospective. The classes will carry banners and pennants and will sing their class songs. Many of the classes will appear in costume. The Glee Club from Harrisburg will furnish the music. Following the procession the rally will be held. School songs will be sung and three or four short, five addresses will be made by members of the alumni. At the close of the meeting the procession will proceed to Eckels' Field to witness the baseball game between the normal school team and the Harrisburg P. R. Y. M. C. A.
